

8 Copyright Secured Feb. 2^d 1858
Publication Deferred same day

WHERE ART THOU?

Written & Dedicated to

MISS BELL HORTON

of Northumberland Pa. by

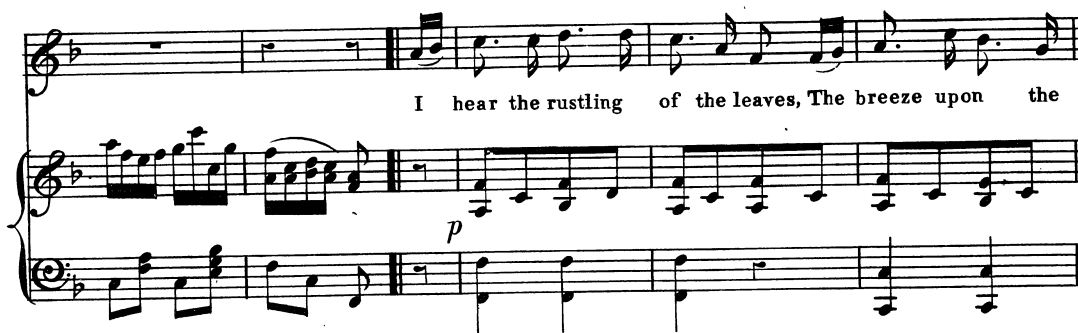

NYDIA,

Music by

JOHN H. HEWITT.

Published by MILLER & BEACHAM, Baltimore, Successors to E. D. Benteen.

Tenderly.

2420
Entered according to Act of Congress in the Year 1853 by Miller & Beacham in the Clerks Office of the District Court of Md.

through the trailing wil-low boughs, The dainty south-winds chime; I hear all voi - ces soft and low—But lis-ten not to thine, I hear all voices soft and low, But listen not to thine.

colla voce. a tempo. cres.

rall: a tempo. rall: a tempo. cres.

2.

Despite the swaying jessamine,
That steals one half the light,
And burdens with its faint perfume
The dewy breath of night;
The star-eyes thro' the lattice-work,
Are smiling down on mine,
I see the eyes of the blue heaven,
But, darling, where are thine!

3.

There is a breath upon my cheek,
A murmur like a sigh;
And beating close upon my heart
A burden seems to lie.
Ah! 'tis the weight of loneliness,
And not thy gentle brow;
I feel the breathings of the night,
But, darling, where art thou?