Handwritten musical score for three staves. The notation is a form of early printed music, likely from a 16th-century manuscript. The lyrics are in Latin and are written below the staves. The first staff begins with a treble clef and a key signature of one flat (B-flat). The lyrics for the first staff are: "nus Deus", "costā in mu li erem,", "ij", and "& adduxit eam". The second staff continues the melody and includes the lyrics: "ij", "ad A", "dam", "ij", "ad Adam", and "ad A.". The third staff concludes the piece with the lyrics: "dam", "ij", "ad A", and "dam.". The notation consists of diamond-shaped notes on a five-line staff, with vertical stems and horizontal beams connecting notes. The ink is dark, and the paper shows signs of age and wear.

This image shows a close-up of a blank, lined page from a notebook. The page is cream-colored and features five horizontal ruling lines in a dark, slightly irregular ink. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. The paper has a subtle texture, and there are some minor discolorations and faint smudges, particularly near the top and bottom edges. A small, light-colored rectangular mark is visible near the top center of the page. The right edge of the page shows a slight shadow, suggesting it is part of a bound volume.

This image shows a close-up of a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf from an old book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and faint smudges. Five horizontal ruling lines are visible, drawn in a dark ink or pencil. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. The left edge of the page shows the binding of the book, with some of the adjacent page visible.
