

The Song of the Sky Lark.

(Written by MRS. HEMANS)

Composed & Respectfully Dedicated TO

Mrs. S. McClellan,

OF PHILADELPHIA

BY MISS A. BROWNE,

No 16.

Professor of the Logierian System of Music.

Philadelphia, Published by G. E. Blake, No: 13 South Fifth Street.

Gem 26. Copyright secured according to law.

ANDANTE.

Grazioso, Sostenuto.

Con Spirito

Second Verse.

There is joy in the fo--rests; the bird of night Hath made the leaves tremble with

The Sum-mer is come; she hath said "Rejoice!" The wild woods thrill to her deep delight; But mine is the glo-ry to sun-shine given— Sing—, sing thro' the merry voice; Her sweet breath is wand'ring a-round on high: Sing—, sing thro' the

Elevamento Dolce

e—choing heav'n!
 e—choing sky!

Mine are the wings of the
 There is joy in the mountains, the

Grazioso pp

soar-ing morn,
 bright waves leap Like the bounding Stag when he breaks from sleep;

Mine are the fresh gales with day spring born;

Zeloso f ff pp p

On-ly young rapture can mount so high— Sing— sing thro' the Mirthfully, wildly they flash a—long— Let the hea—vens

Brillante cres cen

e—choing sky!
 ring with song!

Allegro.

-do ff p f ff