ALWAYS AND EVERYWHERE.

O say not, when my earthly days are o'er,
That I have only caused thee sorrows sore ;
For I have wrecked my own life, even more,
Always and Everywhere.

O say not, when on earth I no more dwell,
That I have numbed thy young heart's joyous swell ;
I, too, have quaffed the Poison-Cup of Hell,
Always and Everywhere.

But say, when soft the grasses o'er me wave,
That God is kind to hide me in the grave ;
For both my life and thine I did enslave,
Always and Everywhere.

But say, O say ! when my last hours depart,
That my poor life was one long frenzied smart ;
For I have loved thee, though with bitter heart,
Always and Everywhere.
