FORTE.

Beautiful sun-beam, hither, come hither, I pe-rish without thee, Oh!

where hast thou stray'd? Why should our day-dreams like wild flowers wither, When the bloom of the valley is left in the shade, 'Tis thine to en - li - ven full ma - ny a bower, For oh! thou art joyous, and happy and free, Still smiling on Wood nymphs, and many a flower, While

I in my lone - liness look but for thee, While I in my lone - liness look but for thee.

Beau -- ti - ful sun - beam, once I could wan - - der,

Once I could meet thee at ear - - liest dawn, Once I could fly to the Moun - tain top yon - der, And wel - - come thee back to the dew - spangled lawn; Welcome at last tho' my fond eyes are closing, No sun - beam can bring back the bloom that has fled, 'Tho' the li - ly of death on my heart is re - pos - - ing,

Beau - ti - ful sun - beam shine o'er my head, Beau - ti - ful sun - beam shine o'er my head.
